Robber Holds
Coffee Cup While
Victim Finds Money

IT DIDN'T HAPPEN HERE (It Happened in St. Louis). H. L. "Jiggs" Smith, formerly of West Poplar street, Harrisburg, is employed by a sheet and metalworks on West Pipe street in St. Louis and his aunt, Mrs. Frank Parkinson of Harrisburg, was telling me about an incident in his life, which occurred last week.

At a coffee break at the plant, he went out and was returning with two paper cups of coffee. As he neared the plant door a black car drove up and a man jumped out, putting a knife in Smith's back and demanding his money.

There Jiggs was, holding a cup of coffee in each hand, but the robber was accommodating. He held one of the cups while Jiggs got his money out, which was four dollars.

Then the bandit took Smith's pocket knife and cigarette lighter but when Smith told him that the lighter belonged to his father, now dead, the bandit was returned.

"The bandit departed taking with him the cup of coffee that he had been holding."

WE GROW 'EM BIGGER DEPT.: I have right here on my desk an egg. I suppose it's a double-yolk egg because of its size but I haven't broke it open to be sure. The egg was brought to me by C. C. Porter, who obtained it from Lee Davis of Omaha Route 2, who teaches at Ridgway high school.

The egg is eight and a half inches in circumference the long way, seven inches the short way. That's a lot of egg and probably would make a couple of breakfasts.

Child is Key in Questioning of Maniac Suspect

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (U. P.) — A 2-year-old girl who was found lying beside the body of her murdered mother was a key figure today in the questioning of a suspect in the "maniac" slayings of at least three persons.

Evansville authorities refused to confirm or deny whether little Shirley Fay Duncan had identified the suspect as the man who all but wiped out her Henderson, Ky., family.

But it was reported elsewhere that Shirley Fay said the man being held here was the killer, who "caused the trouble" at her farm home March 28.

A killer, described as a "maniac," invaded the home of her grandfather that day. He killed Shirley Fay's mother, Elizabeth, 19, the grandfather, Goebel Duncan, 53, and her father, Raymond, 20. All three were shot in the head after their hands were tied behind them.

Indiana and Kentucky authorities are trying to link the Henderson slayings with three similar killings in Evansville and nearby Mount Vernon, Ind. The possibility that a crazed killer is at large has terrorized residents of this Indiana-Kentucky border area.

Evansville police have not revealed the identity of the man being held, but a detective said today that the suspect still was regarded as "the best we've had" after days of intensive questioning.

Shirley Fay viewed the man Saturday, but police emphasized that "she's only a 2-year-old girl."

"She can talk, but only as a 2-year-old can talk," the detective said.

The man has admitted several burglaries, it was reported, and owned a black Chevrolet with Indiana license plates similar to one seen near the scene of the Henderson and Mount Vernon murders.

Authorities have been working on a theory that the killer might be a burglar who was surprised by his victims.

Polio Vaccine
A Success, Salk
Report to Show

Will Be Read at Meeting of Scientists Tuesday

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (U. P.) — Dr. Jonas E. Salk has prepared a scientific report which shows that his anti-polio vaccine is a success in the vast majority of cases, it was learned today.

Salk will read his report Tuesday at the same scientific meeting at which Dr. Thomas Francis Jr. will deliver his long-awaited report on last spring's mass testing of the vaccine in 1,800,000 children.

Salk's report is based on the doctor's testing of his vaccine among more than 8,000 children and adults in the Pittsburgh area. It was prepared without knowledge of the contents of the Francis report.

Effective in Most Cases

It is reported that the two reports will bear out the generally held belief that the Salk vaccine is effective in most instances.

In the minds of the involved scientists there hasn't been any doubt of the worth of the vaccine for over a year, when Salk's long and detailed series of experiments, first in monkeys, then in human beings, demonstrated that it could and did protect against all of the three polio virus types.

The big purpose of the mass testing with so many children was to prove the effectiveness of the vaccine on such a large scale and so dramatically that there couldn't be the slightest doubt about it and no one anywhere could fail to know that means of wiping out polio was eventually at hand and was both cheap and easy to use.

And so Tuesday at 10:30 a. m. the results of the mass testing will be disclosed in the white glare of lights illuminating Dr. Francis' report on the platform especially erected in the University of Michigan's most ornate lecture hall. Scientific 'Stars' Attend

The National Association for Infantile Paralysis, which has spent 10-million dollars for the vaccine and the mass testing, assembled an audience of some 500 scientists from all over the country to hear the triumphant culmination of its long fight to conquer the crippling disease. The program itself at which both Dr. Francis and Dr. Salk will read reports, was star-studded—scientifically speaking.

Meanwhile, Michigan was beaming happily over its day of glory. A university man told this reporter, "Why, we've got more reporters here for this than we have for our biggest football games."

Dr. Salk brought his entire family here from the University of Pittsburgh where he is professor of bacteriology and is soon to be promoted to professor of preventive medicine—his wife, Donna, and their three sons, Peter, 11, Darrell, 8, and Jonathan, 6.

Register Sponsors
Survey of Buying
Habits, Preferences

For the second consecutive year, the Daily Register has acquired the services of the Illinois Consumer Research and Survey, to conduct a survey of Harrisburg buying habits and consumer preferences.

The survey will be conducted this week, and three local women will call on a group of Harrisburg housewives to make the survey. This research is important to the Register, in that it gives a pretty accurate picture of local buying habits, brand preferences, etc., and all courtesies shown the women making the survey will be very much appreciated.

Quiet Voting in Three Local School Elections

Voting was quiet in the three Harrisburg school elections held Saturday afternoon. There was no opposition on the ticket in the HTHS, Harrisburg city schools and Dorrisville school races for board members.

In the Harrisburg high school election Dr. Warren D. Tuttle was re-elected to the board and Alfred Johnson was named as a new member. A vacancy was created when Frank P. Parker did not run for re-election. Tuttle received 70 votes, Johnson 73, and there were four defective ballots.

In the city schools election Curtis Small, V. E. Clayton and Hudson Mudge each received 63 votes. All were running for re-election. In the Dorrisville election Robert Mullinix and Marion Abney were re-elected and Duane McClusky was named to fill the vacancy brought about when Othar Dowdy did not seek re-election. Each received 16 votes.

Report Good Oil
Saturation in
Well Near Muddy

Expected to Add Impetus to Activity
North of Harrisburg

Good saturation in the Waltersburg in an oil well operation in the south part of Raleigh township today was expected to give plenty of impetus to oil activity in the area north of Harrisburg this summer.

Too much information was not obtainable regarding the operation. Donald L. Fowl's No. 3 E. May Community Unit No. 1, 400 feet south and 300 feet west of the northeast corner of the southeast quarter of the northeast quarter of Section 34, 8s-6e (Raleigh), but reports were that the drillers struck from nine to 11 feet of saturation in the Waltersburg.

The well probably will be brought in later in the week. With everything practically leased up north of Harrisburg, many interested in oil leasing and production are stating that the May well will open up the area to drilling.

Reports already are coming in that wells are planned in Harrisburg township northeast of Harrisburg and that the outfit that drilled the May well will move to oil rights owned by O. P. Tuttle, Tuttle and Mrs. Mollie E. Tuttle in Sections 6 and 7, 8s-6e. O. P. Tuttle said today that Roy Pledger is the operator coming in to drill his royalty, that Pledger and some Evansville men were the drillers of the May well.

The May well is a short distance north of Muddy.

Worshippers Throng Local Churches
At Services Held Easter Sunday

Hundreds of worshippers thronged church in Harrisburg and surrounding area yesterday — Easter Sunday—with record-breaking attendances being noted at several.

At the St. Mary's Catholic church a capacity crowd attended the Easter Vigil, held from 11 to midnight and followed by the midnight Mass from 12 until 1 a. m. The church was also filled with worshippers for the 7 a. m. and 10 a. m. Masses.

The Easter Sunrise services at the Starlite Drive-in theatre near Eldorado were well attended. The Rev. James Baldwin, of Salem, former pastor here, delivered the message. The service is co-sponsored annually by the Harrisburg Ministerial Alliance and the Kiwanis club.

McKinley Avenue Baptist church reported a record-breaking Sunday school attendance with 699 present. The morning and evening worship services also drew some of the largest crowds in the history of the church.

The First Baptist church had 652 at Sunday school and more than 650 at the morning worship hour. An Easter cantata was presented in the evening by the church choir and was well received by more than two hundred.

Mrs. Gale Blanton,
46, Former Resident,
Dies at Davenport, Iowa

Mrs. Gale (Helen) Blanton, 46, who at one time lived in Harrisburg where her husband was associated with the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., died Sunday at 5 a. m. in Davenport, Iowa.

She leaves her husband, Gale; two children, Linda Gale and Joseph Hale; a sister, Mrs. Ruth Broadway, and a brother, Guy Eblin, both of McLeansboro.

Mr. Blanton is now with the Franklin Life Insurance Co. in Davenport.

Following the funeral service in Davenport the body will be returned to McLeansboro where a graveside service will be held Wednesday at 2 p. m. at the Odd Fellows cemetery. Rev. Charles E. Langston of the Baptist church there will officiate.

Mrs. Blanton was in their room at the St. Anthony Hotel here, owned by a cousin of Robert, when the accident occurred. Jim Carroll, former city editor of the Houston Press and another of Robert's cousins, said the victim apparently had a sleepless night and was driving around to get some fresh air.

Robertson had started up a dirt sideroad off U. S. 290 and apparently decided to turn around when a car wheel caught between a tie and a rail. He failed to see the approaching freight train because of the storm.

Funeral services were held here today and burial was in nearby Prairie Life Cemetery where his father, Felix H. Robertson, the last surviving Confederate general, and his mother are buried.

Earthquake
Is Felt Here

The Harrisburg area had an earthquake early today.

Lots of people felt the tremor at approximately 4:50 a. m. It awakened most of them; some were awake.

Reports were that it lasted about two seconds, that buildings shook and dishes rattled. Picture frames in a couple of instances, at least, were knocked out of place.

The tremor was felt in Independence township, too, it was revealed.

Jerry Robertson,
Oil Columnist,
Killed in Crash

BRENNHAM, Tex. (U. P.) — Jerry Robertson, 61, Evansville, Ind., oil magazine publisher and columnist, was killed instantly Sunday when his stalled car was struck by a freight train during a driving rain storm.

Robertson, who was alone in the car, was in Texas to write an article for the Saturday Evening Post on the 25th anniversary of the east Texas oil field.

He was owner of an oil map company in Evansville, published a weekly tri-state oil report and wrote a syndicated oil column for 16 newspapers in Indiana, Illinois and Kentucky. He also published two books on the oil industry.

Robertson and his wife, Mattie, herself an oil writer, were in Brenham visiting relatives before going to Tyler to begin work on the magazine article.

Mrs. Robertson was in their room at the St. Anthony Hotel here, owned by a cousin of Robert, when the accident occurred.

Jim Carroll, former city editor of the Houston Press and another of Robertson's cousins, said the victim apparently had a sleepless night and was driving around to get some fresh air.

Robertson had started up a dirt sideroad off U. S. 290 and apparently decided to turn around when a car wheel caught between a tie and a rail. He failed to see the approaching freight train because of the storm.

Funeral services were held here today and burial was in nearby Prairie Life Cemetery where his father, Felix H. Robertson, the last surviving Confederate general, and his mother are buried.

Orchard Community, Dies

Mrs. Lura Shanks, 79, resident of the Crab Orchard community, died in the Marion Memorial hospital Sunday at noon. The body was taken from the Courtney funeral home today at 10 a. m. to the home of a son, Raymond Smith, in Crab Orchard to lie in state.

The funeral will be Tuesday at 11 a. m. at the Bethel church west of Harco in Williamson county. Burial will be in the church cemetery.

Feared Crashed
En Route to Bandung Parley

Plane Carrying Communist Group to African-Asian Talks

HONG KONG (U. P.) — An Indian airliner carrying nine members of the Chinese Communist delegation to the African-Asian conference at Bandung, Indonesia, was overdue today and feared crashed on a flight from Hong Kong to Djakarta.

Airline officials said the plane left Hong Kong at 10:31 p. m. CST last night, and was due to arrive in the Indonesian capital at 5:50 a. m. CST today.

R. N. Kaul, manager in Singapore for Air India International, said he was unable to confirm that the chartered aircraft had ditched east of Singapore.

He said the plane was overdue, but he was trying to obtain confirmation from Djakarta and other points on the whereabouts of the craft.

Three distress messages from the plane were reported picked up at Kuching, the capital of Sarawak.

It was not immediately clear whether other passengers were aboard the plane with the Red delegates to the conference, and the number of crew members aboard was not known.

The SOS reports raised speculation here that the plane may have been ditched in water rather than have crashed, and therefore survivors may be afloat in rubber life rafts.

Gov. Stratton
To Write Own
Tax Reform Act

SPRINGFIELD (U. P.) — Gov. William G. Stratton said today his administration will draft its own tax reform amendment to the Illinois Constitution.

The governor declined to rule out a revenue amendment which would permit some sort of state income tax. But he said an amendment which failed to ban an income tax "would be a little more difficult to put through the Legislature."

Stratton said there is "equal need" for both revenue reform and court revision in the state Constitution. He said amendment of the judicial article was still the "No. 1" administration amendment for 1955 legislative action.

The 1955 Legislature can submit three constitutional amendments to voters in the 1956 general election. In his January message to the Legislature, Stratton called for court reform. In his budget message two weeks ago, he endorsed a new revenue article.

The governor said he would have to give more study to the possibility of permitting a state income tax under the Constitution. He indicated he did not favor the state income tax, however.

"In the first place, the heavy federal income tax would rule out any substantial amount from a state income tax," he said. "We would still have to get the bulk of our revenue from the retailers' occupational tax."

On other matters, the governor said:

1. When a statement about his political plans in 1956 "is needed I'll make one."

2. His legislative program is moving at a satisfactory pace.

3. He still has plans to establish a state atomic energy commission to spur the economic development of atomic-powered industry in Illinois. He will confer with Sen. Glen Housley (R-Harrisburg) regarding fears of economic harm resulting from nuclear power development.

Political Fire Horses

Editorial — BY BRUCE BLOSSAT

Political debate in America always has had a fanciful quality about it. But seldom has it been more unreal than in the postwar years.

All the most scrupulous experts agree that election results opinion polls and other gauges show
the great bulk of the American people to be moderate-minded in both domestic and foreign matters.

The two major political parties appear to have prospered lately in the degree to which they have put themselves in tune with the American majority's quite temperate demands for action in government.

This necessity for heaving to a moderate line has brought the two parties quite close together in many policy questions, like the continuation and expansion of social security, the development of an adequate defense, the building and maintenance of friendly ties with other nations in an atomic age.

Yet the American politician finds this a painful dilemma. For campaign purposes he likes to be able to draw sharp lines and make bold distinctions. He wants to blast the opposition. With every body hovering around a broad center, this is really tough.

The old pro doesn't like to concede that in many ways the only difference between himself and his opposition party is that which once was so well expressed in the play called "State of the Union":
"They're in, and we're out."

So, lately more than usual, he has taken to manufacturing all sorts of differences in the effort to create issues that will impress the American voter.

In the last years before the Republicans captured the White House in 1952, their exaggerations on some issues suggested they were going to remake the entire government from top to bottom, and sweep away our then existing foreign policy at a stroke.

When the GOP moved in, they found that the steel wrecking ball had no place. They have been able to do some useful remodeling and a good deal of wholesome broom work. But essentially, the house of their predecessors still stands.

Now it is the Democrats who are scrambling to make themselves seem different. The artificiality of some of their argument is possibly a little harder to take than some of the old Republican guff, since the Democrats were in office only three years ago and are presumed to know better.

They keep chomping away at present foreign policy as if all our alliances were crumbling, Russia was at the gates and we were doomed. In their hearts they know full well if they had the reins the differences would probably be mere matters of emphasis, timing, and the like.

American politics being what it is, talking about this isn't going to change it. But maybe it will enable some of our citizens to hold fast to their calm in the face of the loud snorting of the old political fire horses.

Another Whodunit?

Comrade Malenkov, the deposed board chairman of the Kremlin corporation, is mysteriously missing in Russia. He didn't show for an official function, and he sent regrets to some visiting Swedes
he was supposed to escort around.
Moscow radio dropped a hint he might have come to a bad end. It said people who put consumer goods ahead of heavy industry (namely, Malenkov) are enemies of the Russian people. That makes it sound as if he might have had a recent date with a dum-dum bullet.

There was one report he was off on an inspection trip in forbidding Siberia. If the Kremlin wanted to be a bit subtle about it, then the top gang might finish Malenkov by the simple process of taking his road map away from him. He wouldn't get far in that muddy, rutted waste of frozen country. Even a flat tire can be a death sentence.

Rubber boots will last longer and keep their shape better if the insides are propped up with cardboard when the boots are not in use.

Rice is more extensively grown and more widely used than any other foodstuff in the world.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND by DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says: Dulles and Anthony Eden don't love
each other at all; Clark Griffith pays tribute to Harry Truman
as a pitcher; Senator Magnuson's battle against cancer has made great progress.

WASHINGTON.—You can write
it down as certain that American-British cooperation on foreign policy isn't going to get any big lift
from the ascension of Sir Anthony Eden as prime minister—unless Eden deals exclusively with President Eisenhower.

Inside fact is that Eden and John Foster Dulles just don't get along.
Eden considers Dulles a novice and a bumbler. Dulles, in turn, has referred to Eden in private as an appeaser. Once, during the Indochina crisis, he felt that Eden was trying to win a Nobel peace prize
for himself at the expense of a firm stand against Communism.

Immediately after taking office,
the new prime minister showed his complete lack of confidence in the Dulles foreign policy by sending a cable to the British ambassador in Moscow asking the Kremlin's help in trying to prevent war in the Far East.

Eden instructed the British ambassador to call on Foreign Minister Molotov and urge that Russia
lay a restraining hand on the Red Chinese and keep them from precipitating war. Eden added that he was sure the Russians didn't want war. In turn he promised that he would use his influence to calm Washington.

On at least three occasions, Dulles and Eden have clashed on foreign policy.

One was prior to the Geneva conference last year when Vice President Nixon talked about sending the U. S. Army into Indochina, and when Admiral Radford tried to persuade Churchill to cooperate with us in sending airplane carriers to help beleaguered Dien Bien Phu. Dulles thought he had an agreement with Eden on a joint,
get-tough policy, only to find Eden supported neutralist Premier Nehru instead.

Other differences took place at the Geneva conference where Eden, not Dulles, played the major role in bringing about a compromise Indochinese peace.

Eden and Dulles also differed regarding French cooperation in the European Defense Community.
In the end Eden's views prevailed.

It's more than likely, therefore,
that Prime Minister Eden will insist on dealing with President Eisenhower and let Mr. Dulles walk on the opposite side of the street.

baseball, says that Harry Truman is the best presidential pitcher who's ever tossed out a ball at the opening of the season. Harry once hit an umpire in the rear end as he stooped over to dust off home plate. . . . Most enthusiastic presidential baseball fan was Teddy Roosevelt, says Griffith. . . . The first president to toss out a ball was William Howard Taft. . . .
F.D.R. tossed out more baseballs than any other president, though he was interrupted at times during the war. . . . Eisenhower got a slew of protests when he declined to throw out the ball at the opening of the season in '53. He had made a golf appointment in August. Fortunately, bad weather postponed the game so he was finally on deck for the opener. . . . No recent candidate for president has been elected whose picture was not already in the amazing photo gallery on Clark Griffith's walls. Griffith says he knew before the 1952
campaign started that Eisenhower would be elected, because he had Ike's picture, but not Taft's who originally opposed Ike, nor Adlai Stevenson. . . . Of the present potential candidates, Griffith has pictures of Vice President Nixon, Sens. Lyndon Johnson of Texas,
Styles Bridges of New Hampshire,
but not Knowland of California,
Kefauver of Tennessee, or Stevenson.

FIRST CANCER BATTILER
It was exactly 17 years ago that a young congressman from Washington state introduced a bill in the House of Representatives providing for a national cancer research center. At the time introduced it there were howls of "socialism" from many of his colleagues.

Nevertheless, after a tough fight and with the help of Sen. Homer Bone, also of Washington and now
U. S. Court of Appeals judge in San Francisco, the bill finally passed.
Last week the young man who introduced the bill, Sen. Warren Magnuson, now senior senator from Washington, went out to Bethesda, Md., to inspect the National Institutes of Health which his bill had helped to found in 1938. At that time Congress was so miserably that no money was available for the land, but finally Mrs. Julia Wilson, whose husband had died of cancer, donated a large amount of acreage and gradually the chief cancer research center of the nation has been built.

Today it not only handles cancer
but is experimenting with heart and mental diseases, and has managed to keep alive for six years a child stricken with leukemia. Hitherto, leukemia, cancer of the blood, has been fatal.

During his visit, Senator Magnuson asked Dr. John Heller, head of the National Cancer Institute, what progress they were making in discovering a cure for cancer.

"We are closing in on it," was Heller's cautious reply. He went on to tell how 120,000 women in Memphis had been examined for cancer and 695 cases discovered, 20 per cent of whom were women under 19 years.

"If we had enough money to make these examinations throughout the country," commented Magnuson, "think how many lives we could save!"

"As a matter of fact," continued Magnuson, "the cost of this entire Health Institute over the years since we built it has been less than one destroyer."

"It isn't a happy thing to think about," said the senator from Washington, "but one out of every five people either have cancer or are going to get it. Yet we seem to be afraid to appropriate money
to fight man's most dread disease."

Note—When Magnuson and Bone introduced the first cancer bill in 1938, never before had the federal government appropriated money to aid human beings by medical research. Congress had appropriated money to fight Bang's disease in cows and hoof-and-mouth disease in sheep, hogs and cattle, but not a cent to combat human diseases.

Proxies Lost as Young Vandals Wreck M-W Office

WILMINGTON, Del. (AP)—Proxies
in the struggle between Sewell L.
Avery and financier Louis Wolfson
for control of Montgomery Ward & Co., were among valuable papers lost when juvenile vandals wrecked
the local offices of the 700-million-dollar mail order house Sunday.

The papers were burned and torn and tossed out of windows by two boys, aged 9 and 10, during a three hour rampage through the offices.
The boys were captured in the building by police.

Mrs. Catherine Custis, manager of the branch office which has been soliciting proxies for Avery in his fight to retain control of the company said she had "no idea" of what was missing. She said company representatives would make a thorough survey today to determine what papers were lost or destroyed.

Mr. Presley was the subject of eulogy on a television program, "This is My Life," broadcast last Wednesday from Hollywood, and this program told poignantly the story of the goodness in his heart, which has included the rehabilitation of a rural victim, tender care of a sister who has been crippled since childhood, Christian influence as a Sunday school teacher, the originating of the Sunrise Easter service on Bald Knob, and the organization of "The Cross" Foundation.

Ike Greet Children at Easter Egg Roll

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower today wished a "wonderful time" to wiggling and waving youngsters at the traditional White House Easter egg roll and advised parents not to get lost.

The President appeared behind a protective fence—a precautionary measure to prevent a repetition of the mob scenes in 1953. Two years ago, Mr. Eisenhower said, several lost children turned up, "but we found it was really the parents who were lost. I hope you all stay together this year and have a wonderful time."

The President told the crowd, tallied at 6,411 as he spoke, that Mrs. Eisenhower, who is at their Gettysburg, Pa., farm, was "sorry she couldn't be here to welcome you."

Youngsters crowding up to the fence shoved eight Easter eggs into the President's hands as he came down from the little platform. As he walked back across the lawn towards his office, he held up both hands and commented, "I've got to find someone to give these to."

He was answered with shouts of "Give them to me."

The President distributed the eggs to other youngsters. Although there was some egg rolling—the cement path at the base of one slope looked like scrambled egg alley—most of the youngsters were playing tag, just plain running around, and sometimes throwing their eggs.

Only children under 12 are permitted at the egg roll, and they must be accompanied by an adult and bring their own eggs.

One reason why Mr. Eisenhower may not venture a stroll among his guests is an experience he had in 1953 when a crowd of almost 28,000 nearly mobbed him.

He and his two grandchildren, Barbara Anne and Dwight David, beat a hasty retreat on that occasion—minus David's basket of eggs. This year his grandchildren are with their parents, Major and Mrs. John Eisenhower.

The service was conducted by the Rev. Thomas Guest, and the Rev. John Yuhas and burial was at Sunset Hill cemetery.

Mrs. Pease is a sister of the late William Schunemann, and will visit relatives and friends in this city before returning to Tulsa.

THE praise of Bobby Jones himself, founder and chief patron of the Masters, rang in Middlecoff's ears for the best single round of golf ever shot in its 21 years and 19 playings. He had conquered the tournament, Ben Hogan and Sam Snead, who finished a sad two-three at a record seven and eight stroke distance behind the winner.

Middlecoff finished with a two under par 70 Sunday, giving him a total of 279, which is as good as they've ever done in the Masters save when Hogan axed it down to 274 in 1953.

It was only the second major triumph for Middlecoff, who won the U. S. Open in 1949 only two years after he turned pro.

Saddest casualty of all in this Masters was Jack Burke Jr. of Kiamas Lake, the first day leader who plummeted down to a tie for 12th after a hard-to-believe nine on the now notorious 13th.

Hogan's close putts failed to drop for birdies on his outgoing nine and after he played shakily on 10 and 11, both for bogey fives, he was out of it. Yet, ironically, he birdied the 13th and finished with 73 and 286.

Snead's story for four rounds was 12 birdies and 12 bogeys. He wound up with a fine 70 Sunday, however, for 287.

City Clerk

Stevenson to Give Formosa Views Tonight

CHICAGO — Adlai E. Stevenson, titular head of the Democratic Party, will break a silence of four months tonight to tell the nation where he stands on the Formosa crisis.

It was expected that the 1952 presidential candidate would oppose any attempt to involve the United States in war over the Nationalist-held offshore islands of Quemoy and Matsu.

Stevenson's speech, billed as "non-political," was to be broadcast nationally over two radio networks—the Columbia Broadcasting System between 10 and 10:30 p. m. EST, and the National Broadcasting System, in a recording, between 10:30 and 11 p. m. EST.

The former Illinois governor has not made a major speech on national issues since last December. He decided to speak out in response to a "heavy volume" of mail asking his stand on foreign policy, a spokesman said.

Stevenson's speech was sure to be watched for indications of where a sizeable wing of the Democratic Party stands. It was reported that he began his speech writing with a draft prepared by Democratic foreign policy experts, including former Secretary of State Dean Acheson.

However, Stevenson's law partner, William McCormick Blair, said the address will not be cleared with party leaders in Washington because it does not deal with party politics.

Whether or not it is "political," the speech may help determine the former candidate's position in his own party. Stevenson has been prominently mentioned as the Democrat's most likely 1956 candidate, if he wants the nomination. But Stevenson has given no indication of whether he will run again.

Sam gave up the idea of riding into Manhattan by train. He walked through a little village and found himself upon a winding macadam road.

There he found a marker that told him New York was only 31 miles. He started resolutely down the road.

He walked a mile. A single car whizzed past him without even slackening speed. He walked another mile and an ancient car came chugging along. Sam stepped out as far into the road as he dared and waved violently.

Brakes squealed and the car stopped. "For the love of Pete, mister," Sam cried, "give me a lift. My dogs are killing me."

The driver of the ancient jalopy was a white-haired man crowding 70. He said, "Get in!"

Wearily, Sam got into the old car. "Where you going, mister?" the driver said.

"God's country, New York," the elderly man smiled slightly. "First time I ever heard New York called that. You don't like the country?"

Sam shuddered. "Not me."

"Nothing much ever happens out in the country," the driver went on. "In the city there's all sorts of trouble, all the time. I had the radio on just a minute ago and they were telling about some fella back in Peekskill who broke out of jail. A real desperado, shoot-'em-up type." Sam wished that he could shrink to half his size.

"Yep," the old man went on, "a real killer, they say. The police are setting up roadblocks all around."

"Roadblocks!" exclaimed Sam in consternation.

The driver pointed ahead. "Wouldn't be a bit surprised if that was one up there."

A New York State highway patrol car was slowed across the road, blocking most of it. The driver began braking his ancient car.

A state trooper waved him down. Sam made a complete mental surrender. He knew he was going back to Peekskill—and this time he would remain there. He was gone, finished, done.

"What's the trouble, Carl?" the old man was saying to the trooper. "Usual stuff, Judge," the trooper replied courteously. "Jailbreak. Some two-gun man they picked up shot his way out of the Peekskill jail."

"Oh, they'll get him, all right," said the man beside Sam.

"I'm sure they will," replied the state trooper. He scarcely looked at Sam as he waved the old driver to continue on past the police car.

For a full half mile Sam could not say a word, then he asked weakly, "You're a judge, mister?"

"A justice of the peace, that's all," was the cheerful reply. "I've lived up here in the country all my life and the neighbors wanted me to have a little income in my old age, I guess, so they voted me in for an easy job. Nice chap, that trooper. Most of 'em are good boys."

"Sure," said Sam, "they sure are."

He was silent again and the little car ate up the winding back road miles. After a while the car turned into a parkway and picked up some speed. But finally, as they were nearing Yonkers, the justice of the peace said, "I guess I ought to tell you, neighbor, the police don't approve of hitch-hikers out here and they've been arresting a lot of people. But Yonkers is as far as I go. If you're in a hurry to get home, I think you'd better take the subway at Yonkers. I'll drive you to it. Uh, could you use a quarter?"

He tendered the coin to Sam. The latter took it. "Judge," he said, with deep emotion, "you're the first honest-to-gosh human being I've met in a year of Sundays. You—you almost make up for what I went through today."

When Johnny re-entered the Forty-Fifth Street Hotel, the policemen were still on duty in the lobby.

by. And Lieutenant Madigan was still sitting glumly in a far corner. Johnny waved to him and went up to his room.

Entering, he went into the bathroom and retrieved the sock weighted with the dimes and pennies he had taken from Jess Carmichael the Third's limping goose bank.

"It's here," he muttered. "It's got to be here."

He dumped the coins on the bed and began to examine them individually. He wished he had a magnifying glass, but his eyes were good and he studied the coins with elaborate care. Most of them were worn; a scratch or mark would have shown up readily on them. There was none. He counted the feathers in the Indian's matched. He studied the milling headpiece on the pennies. They all around the edges. There was nothing out of place. He turned the coins over and studied them. He separated the dimes from the pennies, studied each in turn. A half hour went by and he was no nearer the solution.

"It's here," he exclaimed aloud. "Jess Carmichael was no smarter than I am."

He had the coins lined up according to their age. The oldest, he discovered, was an 1860 penny. The oldest dime was an 1862. The next dime was dated 1865.

Idly, he pushed the two rows of coins together, the oldest dime, the penny, then—a thought struck him and he moved swiftly, lining up the coins according to the dates, regardless of their value. The coins' dates now ran continuously 1860, through to 1939. "That's it!" he cried. "That's it!"

Pope Calls for Disarmament in Easter Address

VATICAN CITY — Pope Pius XII, in an Easter Sunday appeal for peace, called on world leaders to "start a progressive disarmament" that would spare the world the horrors of an atomic war.

The 79-year-old Pontiff addressed 350,000 Easter pilgrims who jammed St. Peter's Square and its approaches — one of the biggest crowds ever seen in the Square.

He exhorted atomic scientists to "persevere bravely and confidently" with the development of nuclear energy for peaceful purposes and asked God to prevent their efforts "being turned into an infernal violence which would destroy everything."

The Pope, dressed in gleaming white and appearing in better health than at any time since his recent illness, called on world atomic leaders to "arrange treaties that will insure peace, start a progressive disarmament and thus spare humanity the destruction of a new war."

Eisenhower Tosses First Ball To Open Season

WASHINGTON (U)—Sore arm and all, President Eisenhower stuck to the right hand and threw out an overhand pitch to inaugurate the 1955 big league baseball season. The President's ceremonial throw—a short toss—sailed out of the President's box and into the scrambling squads of the Washington Senators and Baltimore Orioles. The coveted ball was retrieved by Washington second baseman Pete Runnels.

With this pitch—a painful chore because the President's right shoulder is plagued by bursitis—Mr. Eisenhower sent Washington and Baltimore off on the American league pennant chase.

LITTLE LIZ

Modern man has the genius to make it rain, but there are still a lot who lack the common sense to come in out of it.

Indians, Braves Favored by Baseball Writers

NEW YORK (U)—The Cleveland Indians will win a second straight American league pennant this year but the Milwaukee Braves will succeed the New York Yankees as National league champions.

That was the consensus of the 184 baseball writers in 16 major league cities who participated in the United Press' annual pre-season poll. It will be the first all-Midwest World Series since 1945 if they prove correct.

The experts envisioned the Indians beating out the New York Yankees in a two-team runaway race similar to last year when Cleveland won 111 games and Manager Casey Stengel's former world champions won 103. In the National league, they foresaw a three-team struggle involving the Braves, Giants and Dodgers plus a potential dark horse in the Cardinals.

The dark horse in the following order of finishes:
National: Milwaukee, New York, Brooklyn, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Philadelphia, Chicago and Pittsburgh.

American: Cleveland, New York, Chicago, Detroit, Boston, Washington, Baltimore and Kansas City.

Phillies Replace Ennis, Ashburn; Both Injured

PHILADELPHIA (U)—The crippled Philadelphia Phillies, with opening day only hours away, were ready to dip into the minor league talent barrel today to replace injured outfielders Del Ennis and Richie Ashburn.

With the possibility of Ennis being laid up for several weeks and Ashburn still a doubtful factor for Tuesday's opener with the New York Giants, the club figured to bring up either Bob Bowman or Larry Novak, rookie outfielders who were sent to Syracuse of the International League after training with the Phils in Florida.

The decision rested on the outcome of new X-ray examinations of the hairline fracture Ennis suffered just below his left knee when he collided with Ashburn while chasing a line drive in Friday's exhibition game against the New York Yankees. Ashburn suffered a sprained ligament in his left knee.

CHURCH LEAGUE CHAMPIONS, OLDER DIVISION—The McKinley church entry in the older division of the Harrisburg church basketball league took championship honors in the 14-19 years of age group. The squad, along with the members of McKinley's junior-age team, were guests of the McKinley Brotherhood at a dinner Friday evening at Murt's cafe. Left to right, front row, Assistant Coach Delmar Ewell, Russell McDowell, Ronnie Boren, Wayne Short, Jack Oze, Dick Childers; back row, left to right, Harold Hicks, Bob Hicks and Robert Brogan. "Chuck" Hunsinger, team coach, was unable to be present for the banquet. (Register Staff Photo)

Rookie Pitchers Star as Yankees Beat Dodgers, 7-3

NEW YORK (U)—The New York Yankees were singing the praises of rookie pitchers Tom Sturdivant and Johnny Kucks today as they got ready for Tuesday's opening game against the Washington Senators.

Sturdivant held the Brooklyn Dodgers hitless and runless in a three-inning workout Sunday as the Yanks scored a 7-3 win. Kucks, 21-year-old right-hander, was signed to a Yankee contract. In 26 innings this spring he allowed 14 runs and 25 hits.

A'S SHOW HITTING POWER

WILMINGTON, Del. (U)—A rousing 14-5 victory over the Philadelphia Phillies sent the Kansas City A's heading home today for their first American league game. The A's, who were in the lead in the pennant race, were aided by their slugger power. Two homers by Vic Power and one each by Bill Wilson and Gus Zernial featured the A's 20-hit assault Sunday. The A's open the regular season Tuesday against Detroit.

BRVES TUNE UP "CLUTCH" HITTING

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (U)—The Milwaukee Braves have their "clutch touch" in batting all tuned up for Tuesday's opening game.

They proved that when Danny O'Connell wracked a two-run homer in the ninth inning Sunday to tie the Cleveland Indians, 4-4, and then Hank Aaron poked another two-run homer in the 10th for a 6-4 victory. Both blows came off star Cleveland rookie Herb Score, who had allowed only four singles in four innings until the ninth frame.

CARDINALS SCORE WINNING RUN ON ERROR

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (U)—An error by Bubba Phillips proved decisive in the St. Louis Cards' 10-9 win over the Detroit Tigers Sunday, despite 13 hits by each team.

Phillips' wild toss on Joe Frazier's pinch-hit enabled Ken Boyer to score the final run.

SENATORS FINISH WITH 15-8 RECORD

WASHINGTON (U)—Eddie Yost, Washington's "iron man" third baseman, wound up as the Senators' leading hitter of the spring today with a .397 average while the club finished with an overall exhibition game record of 15 victories and eight losses.

Southpaw Chuck Stobbs was credited with Washington's 5-2 victory over Cincinnati Sunday after relieving Pedro Ramos in the fourth inning. Ray Jablonski homered for the Redlegs.

WHITE SOX, CUBS TIE IN CITY SERIES

CHICAGO (U)—The annual spring "city series" between the two Chicago clubs ended even at one game apiece when the White Sox blasted four Cub pitchers for a 9-7 victory Sunday before 19,504 fans.

McKinley Men Entertain Church League Champions

The Brotherhood of McKinley Avenue Baptist church was host to the members of the church's basketball teams that participated in the Harrisburg church-sponsored basketball tournament at a banquet at Murt's cafe Friday evening.

ROOKIE FINALLY IMPRESSES RICHARDS

BALTIMORE (U)—It took all spring but right-hander Ray Moore, a $35,000 acquisition from the minors, finally managed to impress Baltimore Manager Paul Richards.

Moore, troubled by a sore arm all spring, made his first start in the Orioles' 4-3 victory over the Pirates Sunday and faced only 10 men in three innings while striking out three. The Orioles won the game when pitcher Jake Theis' throwing error allowed the deciding run to score in the ninth.

GIANTS DEFEAT RED SOX, 6-4

WEST POINT, N. Y. (U)—The world champion Giants arrived here from Boston today for their annual spring game against the Army baseball team.

Whitey Lockman and Monte Irvin each collected three hits in a 6-4 victory over the Red Sox Sunday.

McKinley Men Entertain Church League Champions

The Brotherhood of McKinley Avenue Baptist church was host to the members of the church's basketball teams that participated in the Harrisburg church-sponsored basketball tournament at a banquet at Murt's cafe Friday evening.

McKinley Men Entertain Church League Champions

McKinley's team in the division for older boys—from 14 to 19 years of age—won the championship for that age group.

Forty-five men and boys attended the banquet and program. Rev. Ernest Ammon, pastor of the Carrier Mills Baptist church, was the guest speaker.

Rev. Ammon congratulated the boys on their fine play and stated it is good to win, but more important is to learn the principles of good sportsmanship, honesty, loyalty and fair play.

In a games, including the game of life, we must have a goal. Our goal is to live the Christian life and bring others to Christ. We must stand up for our beliefs—unless we stand for something, we will fall for anything," Rev. Ammon declared.

Members of the older group basketball team were Russell McDowell, Ronnie Mitchell, Phillip Boren, Wayne Short, Jack Oze, Dick Childers, Harold Hicks, Bob Hicks and Robert Brogan. The coaches were "Chuck" Hunsinger and Delmar Ewell.

Orioles Shell Out $50,000 Bonus For Third Baseman

BALTIMORE (U)—The Baltimore Orioles shelled out the largest bonus in the history today when they paid an estimated $50,000 to Jim Pyburn, a 21-year-old third baseman from Auburn, who will report to them Wednesday.

In addition to signing Pyburn, a 6-foot, 190-pound junior from Birmingham, the Orioles also announced the outright release of veteran infielder Johnny Pesky and the signing of right-hander Saul Rogovin to a Baltimore contract. Rogovin worked out with the Orioles this spring while under contract to their San Antonio Texas League farm club.

Pyburn, who played football for Auburn and was named All South-eastern Conference end, has played the infield, outfield and also caught on the baseball diamond.

Lawyers, Farmers Are Occupations Listed by Majority of Legislators

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — Lawyers and farmers fill almost half of the seats in the Illinois Legislature, a survey showed today.

A list of occupations of the 202 members of the 1955 Assembly shows 66 attorneys and 30 farmers, both ahead of any other occupations.

The roster of lawyer-legislators is headed by Rep. Noble W. Lee, Chicago Republican who is dean of John Marshall Law School.

Some of those who farm also gave other occupations. A few are lawyer-farmers. GOP House Leader John W. Lewis Jr., Marshall, and Democratic Rep. Robert Craig, Indianapolis, are farmers and auctioneers.

Real estate, insurance and investments attract the next largest group of lawmakers. Twenty-nine are engaged in one or more phases of this type of activity.

Five Newspapermen
Ten members apparently are content to get along solely on their $5,000 annual state salary, for they list their occupations simply as

Gov't Sues Ex-Marshall for $11,500 Salary

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — The government today filed suit to recover $11,500 in salary paid former U. S. Marshal Robert Grant, Pekin, while he was supposed to be guarding late confidence man, Robert Knetzer.

The money was paid to Grant in 1950-52, while the then-marshall was assigned to act as custodian of the fabulous one-time auto dealer in cross-country money-hunting trips.

U. S. Dist. Atty. John B. Stoddard Jr. filed the suit in Southern Illinois Federal District Court here against Grant and the Fidelity and Deposit Co. of Maryland, which guaranteed Grant's $20,000 marshal's bond.

The suit said Grant failed to obtain permission from the attorney general's office in Washington to travel outside his district, as he was required to do.

Grant has contended he was ordered by Federal Judge Charles G. Briggie to accompany Knetzer. Briggie said he never ordered Grant to go with Knetzer, but said he would release Knetzer from jail — where he was being held for contempt — if Grant would agree to assume responsibility for Knetzer's custody.

Both indicted
Knetzer had been sent to jail indefinitely by Briggie until he could purge himself of contempt by turning over a missing $225,000 from his "new-used" car operations. He was freed periodically to hunt funds.

A federal grand jury in July, 1953, indicted both Grant and Knetzer for conspiracy to defraud the United States, conspiracy to violate the white slave law, and Grant with violation of the white slave law.

The white slave charges concerned the transportation of Wilma Hedgcock of Peoria to St. Louis and Casper, Wyo., where she lived at hotels with Grant. Grant pleaded guilty and was placed on one year probation.

Federal Judge Patrick Stone, Madison, Wis., who took Grant's plea of guilty on the white slave charge, dismissed the indictment charging fraud on Grant's part. Stone said Grant's activities in the case did not constitute fraud.

Knetzer, who paid Grant's expenses at lush hotels, was estimated to have milked up to $400,000 from gullible investors on the money-hunting jaunts about the United States, Canada and Mexico.

Half-Brothers Duel to Death With Ice Picks

NEW YORK (AP) — Two half-brothers duelled to the death with ice picks Sunday before the eyes of their horrified mother who long feared that their bitter feud would end in a violent, Cain and Abel death.

Hundreds strolling in their Easter finery stood dazed when they saw Amiello Russo, 45, the father of three children and president of an AFL plasterers union, slain in the bitter battle.

Steve Romano, 29, Russo's half brother, was hemmed in by the Brooklyn street audience as he stood over his brother's body, still holding a bloody ice pick.

Romano, a presser, and his father, John, 63, were arrested on homicide charges. Police said Romano's father was held because he gave his son the ice pick with which he killed his half-brother.

When Romano was seized by police, Russo's wife Rose, 37, followed by their three bewildered children, rushed to the scene and threw herself across her husband's still form, crying, "Amiello, Amiello."

The mother, Mrs. Marie Romano, 75, watched the street tragedy from the ground floor window of their home.

She had said repeatedly her sons' feud was "bound to lead to death of one of them."

The mortal clash was fought because of a long-standing quarrel between the half-brothers over title to the two-family dwelling where the two families lived.

New Earthquakes Hit Philippines

MANILA, P. I. (AP) — New earthquakes today hit the Lake Lanao area toppling many of the buildings left standing in an earthquake disaster 10 days ago which killed more than 400 persons.

Weather Bureau officials said the new tremors were equal or nearly equal to the last ones that struck the area on Mindanao Island in the southern Philippines.

"Several" persons were reported injured and taken to hospitals overcrowded with victims of the April 1 quake which killed 416 persons.
